ABOUT ME

SOPHIE DURANDET

I am a self-taught ceramic artist based in London, and my practice grows from a fascination with how form, decoration, and texture shape the way we experience an object. Working with clay has been part of my life since 2021.

I'm naturally drawn to strong, architectural shapes, and much of my work revolves around angular vessels with bold, graphic surfaces. Most of my pieces are wheel-thrown and finished with only partial glazing, creating a contrast between the raw clay and the refined surface, and the way those elements interact.

My tonal and two-colour pieces explore how pattern can shift perception, appearing at times fluid and light, and at others strikingly architectural.
